St. Joe Lawyer Faces Fraud Sentence

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON Staff Writer

St. Joseph Atty. Robert B. Locke Wednesday pleaded no contest in Berrien Circuit court to an embezziement charge inaugurated by the Berrien citizens' grand jury.

As a result, Locke will be the first person to be sentenced in Berrien county on a citizens' grand jury indictment. Charges against three of the 12 people indicted thus far have been discurrently awaiting preliminary Locke's plea was accepted by Visiting Circuit Judge George S. Corsiglia of Allegan county. Lucke, 64, of Chaparral read, Royalton township, was continued free on personal recog-nizance band to await sentencing in four to six weeks.

He faces a maximum sentence

Locke was accused of embezzline $13,974 from John McGulpin, of Niles, from October, 1975, to March, 1976. Testimony yesterday from Andrew Novikoff, chief investigator for the Berrien prosecu-tor's office, indicated McGulpin signed an agreement to purchase a South Bend cocktail until a liquor license was trans-

Novikell testified that upon transfer of the license, Locke was to release the $22,000 to the sellers of the former Red Rooster lounge. The $22,000 was made out to an escrow account of Locke's former law firm. Novikeff said, but Locke deposited the money in the Coloma State Bank under a March. Total disbursements Robert B. Locke trustre acount, which had a balance of $4.68 before the deposit.

Locke wrote checks on the account for personal expenditures and didn't retain the money in the escrow account as the agreement between Locke and McGulpin specified, Novikoff said, until the by the bank in 'frozen' and there is currently a balance of a little over $8,000 in the account.

Novikolf was the only witness to take the stand, and after his testimony Corsiglia stated: "The court is satisfied the erime was committed by the defendant. There is just no question in the mind of the court cused (to commit) fraud."

Assistant Prosecutor Michael

Marrs said the prosecution greed to accept the no contest blea rather than going to trial because a no contest plea is not considered an admission of guilt for the purposes of any civil litigation which might arise. However, the court will treat the plea the same as a guilty plea when Locke is sentenced.

Government Aims Curve Ball At Teamsters

likely unwilling, to accomplish by a frontal attack, the federal government is trying to put a halter around Teamsters Union by indirect methods.

The Internal Revenue Service has notified the Teamsters' Central States Pension Fund its tax exempt status has been withdrawn retroactive to

The IRS bases its action on the claim that the fund's investments are of such dubious quality as to jeopar-dize the pension plan's financial inlegrity.

If the IRS maneuver holds up, it could breed a real can of worms. Loss of the tax exemption would mean Central States would have a helly income tax to make up over the past 11 years and pay taxes on future earnings from its investments.

Employer contributions would no longer be deductible as a business expense.

The fund's 400,000 beneficiaries would have back tax liabilities to pay on the employer contributions to the fund prior to their retirement (benefits paid to a retiree are subject to the income tax because the employer is the sole contributor to the pension program).

Faced with the very present probability of not being able to deduct funding payments as a business exense, some employers are more than likely to risk a strike over breaching their employments contracts with the Teamsters by refusing to make further contributions until the dust stirred by the IRS announcements settles back to earth.

Almost certainly the Central States trustees will fight the IRS through to the Supreme Court if need be, so the possibility of the dust cloud remaining aloft for a long spell is far from being remote.

Starting with Bobby Kennedy as Attorney General in his brother's cabinet, the government has poked and pried unsuccessfully, timidly almost, into Central States' affairs.

No one, aside from the Teamster hierarchy, knows its true dollar extent. The best guess by outsiders knowledgeable in pension and investment matters, puts it at $1.4 billion.

The only definite knowledge held by outsiders, including the Teamsters rank and file membership, is that some Central States financial commitments lack the soundness which is expected as a routine thing from the family banker.

Rank and file qualification for pension benefits is another sore point. Any number of drivers reaching retirement age have found themselves ineligible for reasons which an auditor of other pension plans would not accept under any circumstance.

The as yet uncovered mystery in Jimmy Hoffa's disappearance months ago causés many police investigators to feel he may have been ready to make public Central States interior workings.

Since the fund's beneficiaries would be the first to feel the IRS sting and greater degree than others involved with Central States, there is a feeling the tax pronouncement is more of an opening move to place Central States under federal receivership.

A receiver would then be in a position to sort out the wheat from the chaff in the investment portfolio, to determine the validity of benefit disqualifications, and to recommend to the Justice Department any criminal prosecutions which might appear proper.

Awkward and in our opinion, unnecessary because more effective means are at hand, as may be the government's approach, it is a method to throw daylight into Central States' locked-up house.

widely observed in the nation today. The electorate is in a foul mood. And nowhere is the discontentment greater than here in the Sun Belt, or southern rim of America. In recent years the region has become almost a sanctuary for people fleeing the heavy problems of the urban East and stagnating Midwest. They come here for opportunity, primarily, but also because they perceive the social and political philosophy to be routed in traditional values. Interestingly, it seems that the dissatisfaction is greatest where the comforts and benefits

It is one of the few places in the nation where all of the land is owned by private enterprise, in this case, ranchers. Nelson Rockefeller has a spread that cuts into Kenedy. Another chunk of rich property belongs to the husband of Anne Armstrong, U.S. ambassador to Great Britain.

The Internal Revenue Service has notified the Teamsters' Central States Pension Fund its tax exempt status has been withdrawn retroactive to

The IRS bases its action on the claim that the fund's investments are of such dubious quality as to jeopardize the pension plan's financial integrity.

If the IRS maneuver holds up, it could breed a real can of worms. -Loss of the tax exemption would mean Central States would have a hefty income tax to make up over the past 11 years and pay taxes on future earnings from its investments.

Employer contributions would no longer be deductible as a business

The fund's 400,000 beneficiaries would have back tax liabilities to pay on the employer contributions to the fund prior to their retirement (benefits paid to a retiree are subject to the income tax because the employer is the sole contributor to the pension program).

Faced with the very present probability of not being able to deduct funding payments as a business expense, some employers are more than likely to risk a strike over breaching their employments contracts with the Teamsters by refusing to make further contributions until the dust stirred by the IRS announcements settles back to earth.

Almost certainly the Central States trustees will fight the IRS through to the Supreme Court if need be, so the possibility of the dust cloud remaining aloft for a long spell is far from being remote.

No one, aside from the Teamster hierarchy, knows its true dollar extent. The best guess by outsiders knowledgeable in pension and investment matters, puts it at $1.4 billion.

The only definite knowledge held by outsiders, including the Teamsters rank and file membership, is that some Central States financial commitments lack the soundness which is expected as a routine thing from the family banker.

Rank and file qualification for pension benefits is another sore point. Any number of drivers reaching retirement age have found themselves ineligible for reasons which an auditor of other pension plans would not accept under any circumstance.

The as yet uncovered mystery in Jimmy Hoffa's disappearance months ago causes many police investigators to feel he may have been ready to make public Central States interior

Since the fund's beneficiaries would be the first to feel the IRS sting and in greater degree than others involved with Central States, there is a feeling the tax pronouncement is really more of an opening move to place Central States under federal receivership.

A receiver would then be in a position to sort out the wheat from the chaff in the investment portfolio, to determine the validity of benefit disqualifications, and to recommend to the Justice Department any criminal prosecutions which might appear proper.

Awkward and in our opinion, unnecessary because more effective means are at hand, as may be the government's approach, it is a method to throw daylight into Central States' locked-up house.

Swedes' New Law

Sweden, which socialists all over the place like to tout as the ultimate in democratic structures, has devised a new wrinkle which should hasten the flight of capital from the country. Beginning next Jan. 1, under a law promulgated by the Labor government, the decision-making machinery in many private companies will undergo a severe change.

This law, if it sticks, should produce some interesting board meetings. Assembly lines, presumably, would be shut down while everyone crowds around to vote on whether third vice president John Smith should be promoted to second vice president, or

Patriotic citizens should remember the following when displaying their flags over the Fourth of July and at all other times, as

1. When the flag is displayed over the middle of the street, it should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east and west street or to the east in a north and south street.

. The flag of the United States, when it is displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, should be on the right, the flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag.

3. The flag, when flown at half staff, should be first hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position. The flag, when carried in a procession with another flag or flags, should be either on the marching right; that is, the flag's own right, er. if there is a line of other flags, in front of the center of that line.

Fairplain Brothers Swept Off SJ Pier

By TOM SAWYER Staff Writer

Two Fairplain brothers were washed off the north pier into the St. Joseph river channel Wednesday afternoon while walking on the pier with their sister and another friend, St Joseph police reported.

Police said the incident occurred about 3:20 p.m. as about 20 mile per hour winds pushed Lake Michigan waves to between six and seven feet. Police reported that Harry was walking about 40 feet ahead of James, their sister Barbara, 14, and Douglas Blevins, 16, of 2432 Lawrence drive, Benton Heights, when a wave washed Harry into the channel. Blevins told police he grabbed a post and James grabbed him, but another wave washed James into the channel.

Blevins said three other people on the pier heard the cries for help and they attempted to loop belts together in an effort to reach the boys, but failed. The boys' father said they could swim, but not strongly enough to buck the choppy water. Police reported none of the five on the pier could

The St. Joseph Coast Guard sent its 40-foot boat to the scene after Blevins ran to the station. Police said the choppy water restricted those on the boat to a visual search. Heavy waves also prevented a smaller Berrien sheriff's marine division boat from searching. A Coast Guard helicopter from Chicago was also at the scene, police reported. The search for the two was to continue this morning, police Chief Joseph Zwawa of the St. Joseph Coast Guard station said the helicopter arrived within 45 minutes after the station here received the alarm. He said the three-man aircraft flew directly across the open lake from the Glenview, Ill., air station because of the emergency. Normally, he said, it would follow a course around the shore of the lake. The helicopter searched some seven or eight hours until darkness forced it to end the hunt, and it then returned to Glenview. Zwawa said.

Police reported the four youths were on the pier at about the point of the shoreline when the two were washed into the channel.

REVIEW OF REGULATIONS

Display Flag July 4 According To Rules

On this year's Fourth of July, Americans all over the country will be staging gala celebrations of our nation's 200th birthday and the flag of the United States will be flown under many different circumstances.

It is, therefore, a good time for Americans to review the rules and regulations concerning the proper display of the flag, which is celebrating its 199th birthday this year.

Patriotic citizens should remember the following when displaying their flags over the Fourth of July and at all other times as 1. When the flag is displayed over the middle of the street, it should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east and west street or to the east in a north and south street. 2. The flag of the United States, when it is displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, should be on the right, the flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag.

3. The flag, when flown at half staff, should be first hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position. The flag should be again raised to the peak before it is lowered for the day. By "half staff" is meant lowering the flag to one-half the distance between the top and bottom of the staff. Grepe streamers may be affixed to spear heads or flagstaffs in a parade only by order of the President of the United States.

5. When the flag is suspended over a sidewalk from a rope extending from a house to a pole at the edge of the sidewalk, the flag should be hoisted out, union first, from the

6. When the flag of the United States is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony, or front of a building, the union of the flag should be placed at the peak of the staff unless the flag is at half staff.

7. When the flag is used to cover a casket, it should be so placed that the union is at the head and over the left shoulder. The flag should not be lowered into the grave or allowed to touch the ground.

8. When the flag is displayed in a manner other than by being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out. When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right, that is, to the observer's left. When displaying in a window it should be displayed in the same way, that is, with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street. When festoons, rosettes or drapings are desired, bunting of blue, white and red should be used, but never the flag.

9. The flag, when carried in a procession with another flag or flags, should be either on the marching right; that is, the flag's own right, or, if there is a line of other flags, in front of the center of that line.

10. The flag should be at the center and at the highest point of the group when a number of flags of states or localities or pennants of societies are grouped and displayed from staffs.

11. When flags of two or more nations are displayed, they are to be flown from separate staffs of the same height. The flags should be of approximately equal size. International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of another nation in time of

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Critical Hubby Got Off Easy

You've been much harder on others than you were on that creep. Why didn't you clobber him for his lack of compassion?

The problem may not be in her head, as you suggested, but in the fact that she is married to a conceited, insensitive jerk. HE is the one who is disgusting and stupid. The man has obdously driven his wife to food r comfort while he works out the golf course and looks for scuses to enjo, extramarital in and games. Deeper Trouble?

Dear Ann Landers: Recently someone wrote in about the compulsive habit of biting her cheek. She feared it might cause cancer. It may be that all the woman needs to beat the habit is a mild tranquilizer, prescribed by any doctor, not necessarily a psychiatrist.

I had a different type (but also compulsive) habit. My kindly prescribed allergist tranquilizers for me. They worked like magic and the habit was soon a thing of the past. After a few years. I encountered a tense situation in my life and the habit reappeared. I called immediately for a refill of my prescription. Only one or two tablets were necessary before the habit was again dropped.

She's The Wife

Dear Ann Landers: Since everyone seems to toss their pet peeves and private annoyances in your direction I think I will, too. Even if you can't help me, it will make me feel better.

ANN LANDERS

Whenever my husband introduces me to anyone, or refers to me in conversation, he calls me "the wife." It's never "MY - it's always "THE wife." Doesn't that sound cold and impersonal?

The word "MY" is definitely in his vocabulary. He uses it in connection with his secretary, his office, his newspaper, his dog and sometimes his son.

Why does my husband do this to me? Is there a solution? -Arm's Length Life Partner

Dear Partner: Speech patterns can mean something — or nothing. Often they are established out of habit.

If it bugs you to be called "the wife," speak up, first privately, then publicly. But in a nice way. Example: "Please, dear - I'm YOUR wife. Have you forgotten so soon?'

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet. "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." have certainly never authorized any and frankly, I was never told of any," Kelley said in a written statement

But the director confirmed for the first time that FBI agents were involved in breakins against Americans as recently as 1972 and 1973. An FBI source said the break-ins took place "no later than April 1973," three months before Kelley took office. "He did not authorize any, nor has he been told of any during his administration."

The credibility question

stems from Kelley's assertion at a news conference in July 1975 that the FBI conducted no break-ins against domestic targets after 1966

FBl officials later testified before the Senate intelligence committee they had found no records of break-ins after April

The Justice Department's civil rights division now is investigating FBI break-ins since 1971.

Defending his earlier statements. Kelley said he disclosed the facts as soon as he learned them.

He said he knew nothing about the 1972 and 1973 breakins until FBI officials discovered and told him about another set of files in the agency's New York office. Those files were dis-covered last March 17, and the FBI alerted the Justice Department a the same day, Kelley

When those files were reviewed. Kelley said. "I learned of the existence of a limited number of surreptitious entries conducted in 1972 and 1973." He did not elaborate on the number or locations of the breakins.

Referring to news stories describing the earlier FBI statements and the investigation of more recent burglaries, Kelley directly or indirectly that !! knew otherwise or that my advisors in the FBI knew about these entries and failed to advise me of them."

Almost One Fifth Of Detroit's Police Force Is Laid Off

DETROIT (AP) - Detroit. plagued by the highest crime rate among the nation's largest cities, had nearly 1,000 less police officers today after almost one-fifth of the force was laid off to combat a multimillion-dollar budget deficit.

Police Wednesday afternoon marked the final shift before the layoffs took effect with a massive blue flu protest. Police Chief Phillip Tannian said about 357 of the 750 officers on the shift called in sick.

Police officials said emergency services would not be affected by the lavoffs. But ranking officers warned there would be fewer marked police cars on patrol, longer delays on non-emergency calls and slower work action on some felony investigations.

"People can expect a police response if something happens, but sometimes it may take longer," said precinct Cmdr. Clifton Casey. "We're not cutting fat, we're cutting the bone

The 972 officers being laid off turned in their badges, guns, identification cards and handcuffs Wednesday. Under a court ruling Wednesday, 224 of the officers will be rehired with federal funds on July 15. Prior to the layoffs, the police force stood at 5,200.

Precinct Cmdr. James Bannon said officers scheduled for lavoffs were numb at the Wednesday morning roll call.

"I would say their attitude is almost like that of people who walked into the gas chambers," Bannon said. "A badge to a police officer is not just a lousy piece of tin. It's part of his corporate body. Dying police officers often ask to be buried with their badge.

Based on the FBI Uniform Crime Report for the first quarter of 1976, Detroit had the most crimes per person of any city with more than one million people. In the period, the city had 23.6 serious crimes per thousand population, compared to 18.7 for New York, 20.6 for Police officials said citizens would encounter many new delays in dealing with police on such matters as gun registration or making a complaint about a break-in.

This is because many officers have been reassigned from desk work to beef up depleted patrols.

At police headquarters, the number of investigators was cut by an average 25 per cent. Supervisors in most divisions said the layoffs would mean delays in prosecuting cases. If a case backlog develops, they said, decisions might have to be made to drop the less serious

"We'll just have to be more choosy, that's all," said Lt. Donald Pohl, acting inspector of the Crimes Against Property Section. "If we get two bombings and a couple of major thefts we'll have to put embezzlements and larcenies by conversions that happened in the past on the back burner.

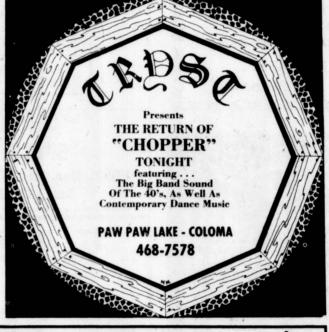

"The decision would be made on the importance of a case, the severity of the crime and the urgency of the matter."

Staff in the vice section was cut nearly 40 per cent, but Lt. Richard Arrington said dropping daily inspections of adult bookstores and theaters would allow continued enforcement of liquor, gambling and vice statutes.

"The prostitutes and pimps aren't going to cut down their forces; they're still going to be out there and we're going to be with them." Arrington said.

Under an order by U.S. District Court Judge Ralph Freeman, women officers were not laid off.

The decision was based on the use of federal funds to pay the women's salaries in an affirmative action program.

LANSING, Mich. Current law protects the handicapped against discrimination only in the area of housing, legislative analysts said. The legislation, which supporters say is the first comprehensive protection for the handicapped, requires the Civil Rights Commission, upon request, to investigate complaints of alleged discrimination.

by relatives and persons in the Detroit-Ann Arbor Filipino community to raise the bond

At their original arraignments two weeks ago before U.S. magistrates, Mrs. Perez was ordered held under $500,000 bond and bond was denied to Miss Narcisco.

The Philippine government protested the bond orders and Judge Pratt held a new bond hearing Monday, setting bail for each at $75,000, meaning each woman could be freed by posting 10 per cent of that figure.

Mario Belisario, an official of the Philippine embassy in Washington, praised the new bond scale as "really very reasonable."

The hearing Wednesday before Judge Pratt took only five minutes. He called the two nurses to the bench, asked them if they understood the terms of their release, required them to reside in Wayne or Washtenaw counties and demanded they report once a week to federal authorities.

Both answered "yes" in soft voices.

The women had been in the Washtenaw County jail in Ann Arbor since June 16 when they were indicted by a federal grand iury in Detroit.

Kelley Claims He Told Truth On Break-Ins

By MARGARET GENTRY Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) Defending his credibility, FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley insists he has told the truth about FBI burglaries of domestic targets and that he knows of none during his administration.

'I have certainly never authorized any and frankly, I was never told of any," Kelley said in a written statement Wednesday.

But the director confirmed for the first time that FBI agents were involved in breakins against Americans as recently as 1972 and 1973.

An FBI source said the break-ins took place "no later than April 1973," three months before Kelley took office. "He did not authorize any, nor has he been told of any during his administration.'

The credibility question stems from Kelley's assertion at a news conference in July 1975 that the FBI conducted no break-ins against domestic targets after 1966.

FBI officials later testified before the Senate intelligence committee they had found no records of break-ins after April

The Justice Department's civil rights division now is investigating FBI break-ins since 1971.

Defending statements. Kelley said he disclosed the facts as soon as he learned them.

He said he knew nothing about the 1972 and 1973 breakins until FBI officials discovered and told him about another set of files in the agency's New York office. Those files were discovered last March 17, and the FBI alerted the Justice Department on the same day, Kelley

When those files were reviewed, Kelley said, "I learned of the existence of a limited number of surreptitious entries conducted in 1972 and 1973." He did not elaborate on the number or locations of the breakins.

Referring to news stories describing the earlier FBI statements and the investigation of more recent burglaries, Kelley said that those accounts "imply directly or indirectly that I knew otherwise or that my advisors in the FBI knew about these entries and failed to advise me of them.'

The committee approved the bill earlier, but in a much weaker form which did little to reduce canoeing on such popular, rivers as the Pine, Pere Marquette, Manistice and Au Sabbe. The referral back to committee was seen as a key victory for oppounds of altempts to restrict canoeing. Those lawmakers pressed for regulation of the sport by the Department of Natural Resources, but without provisions to actually reduce-canoeing. As the bill passed the House, and won approval in the Conservation Com-mittee, it would have permitted all existing canoe liversite to stain mittee, it would have permitted all existing cance liveries to stay in business but they could not have increased the number of cances they now rent. And, the DNR could have turned down new licenses on specially regulated rivers.

Crime Victim Aid Bill Headed For Milliken's Desk

LANSING, Mich. (AP) - Crime victims in Michigan could apply for limited state aid to recover medical expenses or lost wages under legislation headed for the governor. With little debate and on a 254 vote Wednesday, the Senate approved a bill which would help crime victims who are injured or unable to work because of a violent crime. The bill passed the Senate earlier and had been changed slightly by the House. pensation board to consider and

The measure, which would take effect Oct. 1, 1977, would not replace goods or money lost in burglaries or muggings. But it would partially make up losses incurred through medical expenses or the inability to work because of injuries. Victims' relatives who face serious financial difficulty because of crime also would be eligible for benefits.

Gov. William Milliken has voiced support for the bill, although it is expected to cost the state between $1 million and $2 million a year. Some critics said its expense cannot be predicted, and opposition to the bill came mainly from those who argued the state cannot afford it.

But its sponsor, Sen. Patrick McCollough, D-Dearborn, has argued it was the state's duty to provide the aid. "Government is responsible for preventing crime and should be held responsible when it falls," he said when the bill first passed the

Press Gag Rule Struck Down

The president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, George Chaplin, called the order "heartening' but also said it "appears to fall short of a clearcut constitutional victory for the people's right to know what is going on in government. "It is hoped that the qualifications set forth in somé of the opinions will not be relied upon to justify future attempts to restrain the press prior to publication," said Chaplin, editor of the Honolulu Advertiser.

The Reporter's Committee said that the decision was "a major victory for the 1st Amendment because it says that this Nebraska judge had no right to tell the press what it could and could not publish about a criminal trial. The 9 to 0 decision was a strong reaffirmation of the 1st Amendment principle, the public's right to know about its courts.

"Unfortunately, the decision does not say - as we hoped it would - that the 1st Amendment absolutely stops judges from restraining publication of news about the courts.'

LANSING, Mich. (AP) - State Insurance Commissioner Thomas Jones has called Michigan Blue-Cross Blue-Shield's refusal to pay state employe claims "gross arrogance," "completely unfair," unconscionable, arbitrary and irresponsible. Jones said Wednesday he is asking Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley to tell him what he can do to "rectify this outrageous act of the Blues directed against their subscribers." The state's largest health insurer has suspended processing of claims from about 1 000 state employes, charging that the state must repay a $928,428 loss it says it suffered because of what it called "artifically depressed

Canoe Bill Stumbles

Arbor.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) - The state Senate has dealt a serious setback to a bill designed to restrict canoeing on some of Michigan's overcrowded northern rivers. On a vote of 12-8, the Senate decided to send the bill back to the Conservation Committee. The committee approved the bill earlier, but in a much weaker form which did little to reduce canoeing on such popular rivers as the Pine, Pere Marquette, Manistee and Au Sable. The referral back to committee was seen as a key victory for opponents of attempts to restrict canoeing. Those lawmakers pressed for regulation of the sport by the Department of Natural Resources, but without provisions to actually reduce canoeing. As the bill passed the House, and won approval in the Conservation Committee, it would have permitted all existing canoe liveries to stay in business but they could not have increased the number of canoes they now rent. And, the DNR could have turned down new licenses on specially regulated rivers.

By RICHARD SALTUS Associated Press Writer PASADENA, Calif. (AP)

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists eagerly awaited a new batch of Mars photos — and hoped what they see is nothing — before making a decision today on a landing site for the Viking I unimanned laboratory. "Plenty of nothing" is what

"Plenty of nothing" is what project manager Jim Martin said he'd like to see in the newest photos of previously unexamined terrain.

unexamined terrain:

Nothing, that is, that would endanger a landing. The region under study is not far from the place where Viking had been scheduled to land July 4, untilrough and knobby terrain was discovered.

The newest photos were to be put alongside others already received to give a complete picture of the so-called Northwest site. On the basis of these, project officials were to decide today whether to shift the Viking's orbit slightly for a closer-look at the Northwest site, and probably land there, or whether to start heading for an alternative site, called Tritonis Lacus, halfway around the planet.

Today's decision would not be a definite commitment, said Martin, but would be a "plan" toward a particular site. It appeared that the Northwest site was the most likely to be chosen. A landing there would come on July 22 at the earliest the meant dull in the sense that Northwest territory appears flat, nearly featureless except for several scattered craters. Scientists believe it once was a shallow basin, perhaps holding water millions of billions of years ago. It is now a dry flatland, probably covered with fine Martian sand that is shifted from time to time by the high winds of the planet.

If the Viking lander is directed to any site except the original one, its computer must be fed with new commands, and Martin said that process would take about two weeks.

The lander carries a number of experiments, including an arm that will scoop up a clawful of Martian soil and study it for signs of life. Even if communications with earth were lost, it would continue to carry out its tasks under commands of the computer.

Christians Attack Moslem Holdouts In Beirut Area

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) -Christian militiamen attacked the last major Moslem holding in southeast Beirut, the Tal Zaatar Palestinian refugee camp, from three sides today after an all-night artillery and rocket bombardment that started a number of fires in the camp.

Yasir Arafat's Palestinian guerrillas rejected a Christian ultimatum to "surrender or be wiped out." They vowed to defend the camp "to the last man and last drop of blood."

'The camp is as good as fallen," said a spokesman for former President Camille Chamoun's Tigers militia. "We are at the main gates of the camp and have already changed its name to Tigers Hill.'

Tal Zaatar means Thyme Hill. A Palestinian spokesmen said the defending guerrillas were fighting hand-to-hand and had lowered the muzzles of their antiaircraft guns to fire

The camp formerly housed 20,000 Palestinians and an estimated 30,000 Lebanese refugees from Israeli raids into southern Lebanon. But most of the civilians are believed to have fled, and the camp was reported defended by 1,000 to 2.000 guerrillas.

The Christian militiamen completed their conquest of the smaller Jisr el-Basha refugee camp nearby, which the Palestinians abandoned Wednesday. The Palestinians accused the Christians of "blasting to death hundreds of women and children in air raid shelters" in the camp. But Christian spokesmen said most of the civilians in the camp escaped when the attack began 10 days ago, and about 200 guerrillas who were defending the camp at the end escaped to Tal Zaatar.

The Palestinians and their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies were retaliating with mortar and artillery attacks from Moslem west Beirut on Jisr el-Basha and Christian residential areas. But the Christians said a Palestinian-Moslem counterattack on the Christian suburb of Ein Rummaneh had evidently failed.

As the Christians concentrated their attack on Tal Zaatar, Syrian troops and tanks were reported to have overrun Palestinian positions in the mountains 30 miles east of Beirut around the town of Ayoun Siman. "Our forces in Ayoun Siman have taken up new hilltop positions and will fight the Syrian invaders from hill to hill," said a communique from the joint central command of Palestinians and Lebanese Moslems.

Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts barely edged out California Gov. Jerry Brown as Michigan voters' choice for Democratic vice president, the Panax survey released today shows.

favored by 18.6 per cent of those However, Kennedy, Brown and Among Democrats, Kennedy and Brown were favorite choices of 18.3 per cent and 17.7 per cent respectively, Panax said. Brown has never campaigned in Michigan.

Other Republican choices, according to the Panax survey, were Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee and U.S. Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson with 14 per cent each. Former Texas Gov. John Connally had 13 per cent.

Panax said GOP Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts was the choice of 8.2 per cent of the Republicans polled and Ambassador Ann Armstrong got 3.4

Democratic vice presidential choices were U.S. Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona with 13.7 per cent, Sen. Frank Church of Idaho with 7.6 per cent and Alabama Gov. George Wallace, winner of Michigan's 1972 presidential primary, with 5.6 per cent.

Other Democratic contenders collected under five per cent of the vote. "The choice of Reagan appears to be consistent across the partisan lines," Panax said. "However, Republicans are more likely to favor Rockefeller (23.1 per cent) and Democrats and Independents to choose Baker (17.8 per cent and 16.1 per cent respectively.)'

The Panax survey indicated no Democrat appeared to be a strong favorite for that party's vice presidential nomination.

Udall accounted for about 50 per cent of the sample voters' choice. Democrats polled seem to favor Kennedy (27.7 per cent) more strongly than the Republicans and Independents in Michigan, Panax said. Non-Democrats seem to be more likely to favor Brown (21 per cent) than Kennedy (11 per cent), Panax said. Panax said the impact of Michigan voters' vice presidential selection in both parties will be important "because of the industrial and blue collar nature of the state and its strength in the Electoral College

"Additionally, the impact is magnified because Michigan happens to be President Ford's home state," Panax said.

By RICHARD SALTUS

Associated Press Writer PASADENA, Calif. (AP) -Scientists eagerly awaited a new batch of Mars photos - and hoped what they see is nothing - before making a decision today on a landing site for the Viking 1 unmanned laboratory.

'Plenty of nothing' is what project manager Jim Martin said he'd like to see in the newest photos of previously unexamined terrain.

Nothing, that is, that would endanger a landing. The region under study is not far from the place where Viking had been scheduled to land July 4, until rough and knobby terrain was

The newest photos were to be put alongside others already received to give a complete picture of the so-called Northwest site. On the basis of these, project officials were to decide today whether to shift the Viking's orbit slightly for a closer look at the Northwest site, and probably land there, or whether to start heading for an alternative site, called Tritonis Lacus, halfway around the planet.

Today's decision would not be a definite commitment, said Martin, but would be a "plan" toward a particular site.

west site was the most likely to be chosen. A landing there would come on July 22 at the earliest

"If the pictures continue to show more area like this, I think we've got ourselves a safe - but dull - landing site," said one

He meant dull in the sense that Northwest territory appears flat, nearly featureless except for several scattered craters. Scientists believe it once was a shallow basin, perhaps holding water millions or billions of years ago. It is now a dry flatland, probably covered with fine Martian sand that is shifted from time to time by the high winds of the planet.

If the Viking lander is directed to any site except the original one, its computer must be fed with new commands, and Martin said that process would take about two weeks.

The lander carries a number of experiments, including an arm that will scoop up a clawful of Martian soil and study it for signs of life. Even if communications with earth were lost, it would continue to carry out its tasks under commands of the computer.

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) - A district court judge was to rule today on a motion to suppress evidence in the manslaughter trial of entertainer Claudine Longet, accused of shooting her lover in the expensive home they shared.

Miss Longet's lawyers asked that her diary and results of blood and urine tests administered to Miss Longet be withdrawn as evidence.

Assembly Fails To Act; New Jersey Schools Close

By CARL ZEITZ Associated Press Writer

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — An estimated 100,000 students were sing out of summer programs today by a state Supreme Court order to shut down the entire public school system in New Jersey.

The court order took effect after the state Legislature failed, by indinglit Wednesday, to adopt tax legislation needed to fund a new state school aid law. The state's highest court had ruled that the jurrent method of funding schools, based on local property taxes, is unconstitutional because it discriminates against students in power communities.

On May 13, it ordered all spending for public schools halted today unless the Legislature had adopted a new school financing method. The Assembly struggled Wednesday night to pass a tax bill to raise the $478 million for the school aid law. The state Senate waited in the wings, ready to take up any bill sent over by the Assembly.

The Assembly had delayed work on the bill awaiting word from federal district court judges on motions to stay the state Supreme Court order. By a 9 to 2 vote Wednesday, the district court refused to stay the order, rejecting the argument that schools could not be shut down because public education is a constitutional right. They ruled it is not.

Fin Newark, Jonathan Goldstein, the U.S. attorney for New Jerjeev, said he would go before the U.S. 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia today to file an appeal of the ruling by an 11-judge U.S. District Court panel. The developments Wednesday and early today were the latest in a three-year effort to reform school fundling and layation in New Jersey.

Ex-Nixon Nominee Faces Morals, Battery Counts

By JOHN VAN GIESON Associated Press Writer

TAI LAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) -G. Harrold Carswell, whose nomination by former President Nixon to the U.S. Supreme Court was rejected in 1970, has been charged with attempting a homosexual act with a plainclothed vice squad officer.

A two-count indictment returned Wednesday by a Leon County grand jury charged Carswell with battery and attempting an "unnatural and dascivious act" on officer George Greene.

The charge alleging an attempted homosexual act carries a maximum penalty of 60 days in jail and a $500 fine. Battery, which involves touching a person without his consent, carries a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

The indictment did not elaborate on the alleged sexual advances by Carswell. The officer reported that he was approached by Carswell in a shopping mall men's room being staked out by police because merchants complained of

Betty Ford Will Mark 'Minutes' Anniversary

The first name that came to when the producers of nightly "Bicentennial Minutes" series were casting their commemorative July 4 installment was Gerald R. Ford.

Betty Ford Will Mark 'Minutes' Anniversary

By LEE MARGULIES

Associated Press Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) - Not even the Bicentennial escapes "equal time" television's provisions.

The first name that came to mind when the producers of CBS' nightly "Bicentennial Minutes" series were casting their commemorative July 4 installment was Gerald R. Ford.

But since he is campaigning to keep his job, other presidential candidates also would have to be given 60 seconds of air time if he did a "Bicentennial Minute.

That wouldn't be so bad if the other guys also did a "Minute." but the "equal time" rule says they would be free to use the time any way they wished. So the producers chose Mrs.

"I really feel Mrs. Ford is perfect," says Paul Waigner, producer of "Minutes." "She is one of the most important people in our country. We're all just delighted with it.

The episode was taped in the First Lady's garden at the White House and is scheduled to air Sunday at approximately 8:57 p.m. on the East and West coasts, an hour earlier in the Central Time Zone. In it Mrs. Ford talks about the signing of the Declaration of Indepen-

Sunday will mark the second birthday of the "Bicentennial Minutes." The historical tidbits began on July 4, 1974 and originally were to have concluded on this July Fourth.

But it has proven to be so popular — and justifiably so that CBS is keeping it on the air at least through the end of the Waigner welcomes the exten-"The most exciting part of the revolution came later anyway," he explains. "We want to show how signing that Declaration affected everybody - the important people and the general public, too. The revolution did go on for eight years. We've got a lot to cover.

The producer believes "Bicentennial Minutes" has been a success because the creative staff approaches the project as they would any other TV program. Each episode may last only a minute but it nevertheless contains a story, a star, titles, graphics, music, sound effects - even a commercial.

More than 15 persons work full time on the series, and Waigner says 41/2 to five hours of production time go into each installment - not counting research and writing time.

"Sure, you could lift a paragrph out of a history book and put it in television," he concedes when questioned about the necessity of so much labor. "But how long is that going to "History was my worst subject in school," Waigner said. 'It was terribly boring. But this is living history. Now I love it."

No wonder he's happy. Tthe "Minutes" are continuing after Sunday. TV viewers should be glad, too. Come to think of it, probably even President Ford is pleased, since it means he will now be able to do one when he's finished campaigning.

And if he's unhappy about the wait, he should have done what his Republican challenger did. Ronald Reagan taped his "Minute" before announcing his candidacy.

'Bicentennial' Check Is Timely

MIAMI (AP) - Dade County Judge Dominic L. Koo opened his mail and found his July paycheck was a Bicentennial note for $1,776.

"It has a very special meaning for me," said Koo, a naturalized U.S. citizen.

Auto Club Forecasts Holiday Highway Jam

DETROIT (AP) - The Automobile Club of Michigan predicted today Michigan highways will be jammed with a record 3.2 million motorists over the Fourth of July weekend as many motorists stick close to home rather than heading for the East Coast.

'The Bicentennial publicity has had a reverse effect and, oddly enough, even as the Independence Day weekend approaches, it is keeping people away from cities like New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Washington," the club

The report said the Mackinac Island State Park reported attendance up 24 per cent by mid-June compared with a year ago, adding similar reports had come from other state tourist areas

The Auto Club said Michigan motorists would drive about 750 million miles over the long holiday weekend

Evert Meets Goolagong In Wimbledon Finals

Big Servers Grass Stars

TWO-FISTED WINNER: Top-seeded Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., uses both hands on the racquet during her match against Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia in the women's singles semifinals at Wimbledon Wednesday. Miss Evert won 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 and will meet Australia's Evonne Goolagong in the finals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The grass on the famed Wimbledon center court, browned by weeks of hot sun and scuffed by 10 days of hard play, has put an added premium this year on he lightning services of the top tennis stars.

Grass is the delight of the big serve and quick putaway volley players, and the despair of those who prefer the baseline maneuvers of clay courts. Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., reputed to have the fastest service in the game at 140 miles per hour, turned around Wimbledon by crushing second-seeded Jimmy Connors in straight sets in the men's singles quarter-finals. His cannonball serves kicked up the dust and skidded away at such a pace, they were bard to follow

But Connors said. "Never dig up the grass at Wimbledon, as they did at Forest Hills (N.Y. for the U.S. Open). If you do, I'll never come back again."

The programmers complicated the lives of the touring pros by scheduling Wimbledon only a week after the French cham-pionships, played on the slow clay courts at Roland Garros Stadium in Paris.

The players would like to have about three weeks on British grass to tune up for Wimbledon and shake the clay court habits from their systems. Arthur Ashe, president of the Association of Tennis Professionals, says his organization is going to press the question with the federations.

Chris Evert was worried about her service after scoring an uneasy 6-2, 4-6, 6-4 semifinal victory over Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia Wednesday.

In Friday's final, Miss Evert, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., will neet Evonne Goolagong of Australia, who ousted Virginia Wade of Britain 6-2, 6-2,

"Every time I got my first serve in, it was effective, but I wasn't satisfied with the number I got in," Miss Evert said. "I wash t satisfied with the number I got in, "Miss Evert said," I will have to get in 80 per cent of my first serves against Evonne, because she will come in on my second serves. I know that." Miss Navratilova, a powerful hitter, spurred some excitement in the crowd by taking the second set, upsetting Miss Evert's rhythm and touch with well-placed winners.

lagong, the 1971 Wimbledon champion and losing finalist in 1975, had a much easier time. Miss Wade, a notoriously erratic player, seemed completely; overcome by centercourt nerves and never was able to keep the ball in play.

Tanner's big service seemed to be the key to his semifinal match today against Bjorn Borg of Sweden.

The foreman of the jury, whose 12 members deliberated 9 hours and 25 minutes, said the jury asked that measures be taken to prevent incidents similar to the clash between Maloney and Brian Glennie, a defensemen for the Toronto Maple Leafs, in a game in Toronto last Nov. 5.

Another rule, copied from international bockey, will require the teams to change ends at the 10-minute mark of the third period. The idea is to remove any advantage the home team might gain by having its players' bench in its own end for two full periods.

Hatskin said that while efforts are being made to save the San Diego franchise, there are two other groups, in the Min-neapolis-St. Paul area and Seattle, interested in obtaining franchises. The Minnesota Fighting Saints' franchise in St. Paul folded last season.

And Hatskin said an Ottawa citizens' group had made a presentation to the meeting team. Ottawa was one of the original clubs in the WHA, moving to Toronto and now to Birmingham.

The league also announces that the fifth annual All-Star Game will be held in Hartford, home of the New England Whalers, on Jan. 18,

It will match the best players of the East and West divisions.

The new divisional alignment, announced Tuesday, has Quebec, New England, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Birmingham and Florida in the East and Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Phoenix and Houston in the West. Evert Meets Goolagong In Wimbledon Finals

Big Servers Grass Stars

TWO-FISTED WINNER: Top-seeded Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., uses both hands on the racquet during her match against Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia in the women's singles semifinals at Wimbledon Wednesday. Miss Evert won 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 and will meet Australia's Evonne Goolagong in the finals.

Wimbledon center court, browned by weeks of hot sun and scuffed by 10 days of hard play, has put an added premium this year on the lightning services of the top tennis stars.

Grass is the delight of the big serve and quick putaway volley players, and the despair of those who prefer the baseline maneuvers of clay courts.

Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., reputed to have the fastest service in the game at 140 miles per hour, turned around Wimbledon by crushing second-seeded Jimmy Connors in straight sets in the men's singles quarter-finals. His cannonball serves kicked up the dust and skidded away at such a pace, they were hard to follow.

But Connors said, "Never dig up the grass at Wimbledon, as they did at Forest Hills (N.Y. for the U.S. Open). If you do, I'll never come back again.'

The programmers complicated the lives of the touring pros by scheduling Wimbledon only a week after the French championships, played on the slow clay courts at Roland Garros

The players would like to have about three weeks on British grass to tune up for Wimbledon and shake the clay court habits from their systems. Arthur Ashe, president of the Association of Tennis Professionals, says his organization is going to press the question with the federations

Chris Evert was worried about her service after scoring an uneasy 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 semifinal victory over Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia Wednesday.

In Friday's final, Miss Evert, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., will meet Evonne Goolagong of Australia, who ousted Virginia Wade of Britain 6-2, 6-2.

'Every time I got my first serve in, it was effective, but I wasn't satisfied with the number I got in," Miss Evert said. "I will have to get in 80 per cent of my first serves against Evonne, because she will come in on my second serves. I know that."

Miss Navratilova, a powerful hitter, spurred some excitement in the crowd by taking the second set, upsetting Miss Evert's rhythm and touch with well-placed winners.

But Miss Evert, the 1974 Wimbledon champion and No. 1 seed this year, kept cool and eventually wore down the 19-year-old Czech, who now lives in the United States.

Miss Goolagong, the 1971 Wimbledon champion and losing finalist in 1975, had a much easier time. Miss Wade, a notoriously erratic player, seemed completely overcome by centercourt nerves and never was able to keep the ball in play.

Tanner's big service seemed to be the key to his semifinal match today against Bjorn Borg of Sweden.

McMurtry said Wednesday that the jury's verdict would have no effect on his policy about violence in hockey.

He said he hoped that NHL officials had learned much from the Crown's policy of laying criminal charges during violent hockey games. He said he was optimistic that there would be changes in games during the next hockey season.

In Montreal, NHL President Clarence Campbell said Wednesday that hockey is a violent game and that "without violence it wouldn't be hockey."

He said the jury's verdict was 'an expression of confidence from one section of the public at least that the league should be able to conduct its own affairs in that regard.

Alex Delvecchio, coach and general manager of the Red Wings, said at the news conference that the charges never should have been laid.

"Aggressive hockey always will be played," he said.

The court was told that Maloney had knocked Glennie from behind and that the Detroit player had tried to lift the defenceman from the ice to get him to fight. Doctors testified that Glennie apparently suffered a mild concussion.

When asked at the news conference whether he would do the same thing to the Toronto player again, Maloney said that "as far as playing the game, it's a thing that happens on the spur

He said, however, that criminal law extended to hockey arenas and unbridled violence was forbidden. There were legal limitations to consent, either expressed or implicit.

10 Days To Get Local Owner

Mariners Given Extension

TORONTO (AP) - The World Hockey Association has given the San Diego Mariners a 10-day extension to come up with local ownership, but the league's chief executive officer is not optimistic.

Ben Hatskin said Wednesday on the second and final day of the league's annual meeting that the WHA will draw up a schedule for 11 teams, meaning it will not include the financially troubled Mariners.

"We'lf be doing that in the next few days," said Hatskin of his scheduling plans. "If we're able to ice 12 teams, we'll alter that schedule.'

In other business, the league held its intra-league draft, cut roster limits to 18 players for the 1976-77 season and set up a committee to study on-ice violence.

Eleven players changed teams in the draft with Florida - formerly the Cleveland Crusaders - and the Calgary Cowboys taking three each while the Edmonton Oilers and the Quebec Nordiques took two apiece and the Birmingham Bulls, formerly the Toronto Toros, took one.

Hatskin said there are two groups interested in keeping the Mariners in San Diego.

The team has been without an owner since Baltimore businessman Joe Schwartz missed a payroll and defaulted on the franchise late in the season.

Hatskin declined to identify the two San Diego groups but he did say that Vancouver millionaire Peter Graham, owner of the San Diego Arena, has definitely dropped out of the running.

Hatskin said the league had taken what he described as "a positive step toward eliminating violence and upgrading the game" when it reduced the playing roster to 16 skaters and two goaltenders from 18 and

"The move will automatically eliminate the less-talented player and increase competition," Hatskin said, adding that some teams carry a player or two just because of fighting ability with little regard to hockey skill. He also conceded it would save money, a not unimportant consideration for a league with most of its clubs in the red. Another rule, copied from international hockey, will require the teams to change ends at the 10-minute mark of the third period. The idea is to remove any advantage the home team might gain by having its players' bench in its own end for two full periods. Hatskin said that while efforts are being made to save the San Diego franchise, there are two other groups, in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area and Seattle, interested in obtaining franchises. The Minnesota Fighting Saints' franchise in St.

Paul folded last season. And Hatskin said an Ottawa citizens' group had made a presentation to the meeting expressing interest in getting a

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Look they call it competitive. And he has become one of the best hitters in the American League.

Designated hitter-left fielder Hal McRae has been batting in the 340 neighborhood all season as he and the Kansas City Royals mount the most serious charge toward a championship in this town's 21 years of major league baseball.

"I think we've got our best team this year," McRae say. "And I feel like I could have my ninth grade in Avon Park, Fla., and playing sandlot ball with grownups to the present. Harold Abraham McRae has had to fight for a place on the team. He came to the Royals in 1973 in a trade with Cincinnati and was not very consistent. He struggled along in the .180-.190 range for much of the season, constantly experimenting at the plate but always maintaining an aggressive all-out style and occasionally flashing signs of

He finished the year with a .234 average. The next year, with hard work and the patient tutelage of hitting instructor Charley Lau, he bloomed to .310. Last season he maintained the pace and finished at .306 to become the first Royals' player ever to record successive .300

"Hal McRae has made himself into a great hitter," recently praised California fastball artist Nolan Ryan.

"He's about the best hitter I've seen in this league." said former National Leaguer Dave Roberts of Detroit, "I can't find a weakness on the guy."

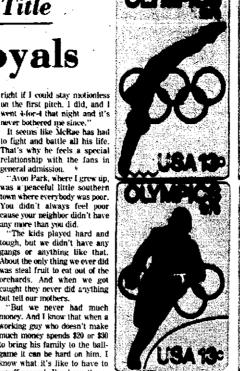

It's ironic that Texas should be posing the biggest challenge to McRae and the Royals this season. Two of the darkest episodes of his career were connected with the Hangers.

In a 1973 game at Texas McRae, for the first he could remember, was yanked out for a pinch hitter.

"I walked around by myself all night," he recalls, "It was the lowest point I had ever reached. Always before I had pinch hit for people. I don't know what I would have done if I hadn't had a wife and two kids. I think I might never have played another game."

The next spring at Kansas City Texas pitcher Jim Bibby's fastball got away from him and struck McRae on the head. He was rushed to a hospital with a screaming headache and other signs of possible injury. The next day be was back in uniform

Time Takes Toll On Johnny Bench

Reds' Star Catcher Battered

CINCINNATI — Time, they say, waits for no one. It has not waited for Johnny Bench. He is no longer the man-child from Oklahoma, mature beyond his years, yet in so many ways, pleasantly immature. Time has taken its toll

His body is taking on a strong resemblance to a road map, long winding scars being reminders of a surgeon's scalpel. For 121/2 years, he has squatted and risen, taken foul tips, been crashed into as a professional catcher for the Cincinnati Reds.

"Twelve and a half years catching is like playing 20 years anywhere else," he said.

His shoulder ached. His feet, battered by foul tips, were sore. His mind wandered to another, earlier year.

"Five games in a row I played at third base. It was like catching one game," he said.

Retirement for Johnny Bench cannot be too far in the future, even though he is six months shy of his 29th birthday. Financially he is set.

"If I needed money, I wouldn't have signed a contract this year," he said. "Then I could have gone out and gotten a whole lot more than I'm making."

He is making $200,000 in the first year of a two-year contract. It sounds like a lot. Then you that Bobby Orr has signed a five-year contract for $3 million.

"They don't even know if he'll ever play another game," says Bench. "And people berate me for making my money for catching 140 games a year.

He is battered, yet durable. So durable that this season he will tie a major league record by catching in 100 or more games for the ninth straight season. That should say something of the rigors that go along with the

No, it is not money that keeps Johnny Bench coming back for more. In Cincinnati at this very moment, he is building a house;

Yet, he goes on. Before, in the younger years, it was easy to go on. Today it is not so. His role has changed.

There was a time when he was THE man. MVP, home run king, RBI champion. His reputation was built on hitting. He is not hitting this year. It doesn't bother him. "I don't have to hit," he said.

The meaning was that Pete Rose, Ken Griffey, Joe Morgan,

Johnson originally had intended to file a complaint with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare claiming the action violated Title 9 of the Education Amendments of 1972.

Title 9 is aimed at ending sex discrimination in education, and Johnson claims his program is being dropped at the same time EMU is expanding women's athletic programs.

But for now, he said, he will plead his case with the college's board of regents at its July 14 meeting. It was that board which decided to drop the sport.

The Tigers have won three straight games. Houk said the rainout "shouldn't" destroy the club's momentum.

Women In Athletics Will Pay To Play

BAY CITY, Mich. (AP) - As the old saying goes, if you want to play you've got to pay. The collegiate athletic rat race - with its winning-iseverything philosophy, emphasis on heavy recruiting and concern for maintaining a sports image above an academic one — may be in store for those who want equality for women campus at bletes.

"I have a fear we'll have pressure to try to get into it," believes Fran Koenig, associate athletic director and women's athletic director at Central Michigan University,

"It depends on whether we feel it's important to keep up with the Joneses or to compete with colleges that think like we do," she told a recent meeting of the Michigan Associated Press Sports Editors Associarress sports Editors Associa-tion near Bay City.

Mrs. Koenig, an active member of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW), doesn't want colleges and universities to begin catering to the gifted women athletes while ignoring the less talented ones who still have women's sports expanded." she said.

"The biggest catalyst in desire sports competition.

Perhaps: that's why she doesn't believe in athletic doesn't beseve in americ scholarships for women, even though Central Michigan — like several other universities in Michigan and throughout the country — are about to begin

I would prefer not to give financial aid to women athletes," she said. "Even to men it should be based on

"I feel it's a privilege to participate in a sport for an insti-tution," she said. "I think in a way an athlete should pay for the bonor of competing for an institution. I'm not being face-

Mrs. Koenig said college programs "are a natural outgrowth of high school programs." "Most large institutions had something for women, but only in the last five to eight years developing college programs for women was Title IX. The law says you can't discriminate in college athletic programs on the basis of sex."

Title IX, part of a United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare regulation, went into effect July 21.

"I think what most women want is not equality," Mrs. Koenig said.

"... I think most women want equity. Equity is what is reasonable, just, fair. "I say we don't want the same programs as men. We'd like to develop programs that are more distinctive for the needs of women athletes." She said the AIAW "wants not identical budgets, not identical programs, just offer sports on demand by women."

"It'll cost us $40,000 this year," Mrs. Koenig said of the Chippewas' outlay for women's sports. "It doesn't make any difference to us if the men used $180,000.".

She said CMU doles out 31 full $2,000 scholarships to men competing in sports other than football and basketball, both revenue producers.

So women will get $64,000 over the next three years, she added. Do newspapers, radio and TV discriminate against women's sports in their coverage?

"I feel for the most part we're getting pretty good coverage," Mrs. Koenig said.

She said expanded coverage would come "when enough mothers and dads want to read about what their daughters are doing as what their sons are

"ABC-TV has been contacted and they're talking about a package for $25,000 and a per-centage of the profits for the next two years. The TV profits will be shared by our entire membership."

There are 750 AIAW members, up from 250 six years

She said the money "is peanuts" compared to what the networks pay the National Collegiate Athletic Association for broadcasting various men's sports, "But you've got to get started someplace and we feel we have a product that will be appealing.

The caliber of women athletes has increased tremendously," Mrs. Koenig-said.

Mrs. Koenig said. That increased to 1.3 million through 1974-75. Mrs. Koenig, who is from Great Neck, N.Y., is a graduate of Brown University. She has a masters from Smith College and

Designated hitter-left fielder Hal McRae has been batting in the .340 neighborhood all season as he and the Kansas City Royals mount the most serious charge toward a championship in this town's 21 years of major league baseball.

"I think we've got our best team this year," McRae say. And I feel like I could have my best year ever.

From the time he was in the ninth grade in Avon Park, Fla., and playing sandlot ball with grownups to the present, Harold Abraham McRae has had to fight for a place on the team.

He came to the Royals in 1973 in a trade with Cincinnati and was not very consistent. He struggled along in the .180-.190 range for much of the season, constantly experimenting at the plate but always maintaining an aggressive all-out style and occasionally flashing signs of great promise

The next spring at Kansas City Texas pitcher Jim Bibby's fastball got away from him and struck McRae on the head. He was rushed to a hospital with a screaming headache and other signs of possible injury. The next day he was back in uniform but understandably nervous.

"Charley (Lau) knew what I was going through," he says. "He insisted that I play that night and told me to go to the plate and, no matter what, to stand as still as could be on the first pitch. He told me I'd be all

He finished the year with a .234 average. The next year, with hard work and the patient tutelage of hitting instructor Charley Lau, he bloomed to .310. Last season he maintained the pace and finished at .306 to become the first Royals' player ever to record successive .300

"Hal McRae has made himself into a great hitter," recently praised California fastball artist Nolan Ryan.

"He's about the best hitter I've seen in this league," said former National Leaguer Dave Roberts of Detroit. "I can't find a weakness on the guy."

It's ironic that Texas should be posing the biggest challenge to McRae and the Royals this season. Two of the darkest episodes of his career were connected with the Rangers.

In a 1973 game at Texas McRae, for the first he could remember, was yanked out for a

It seems like McRae has had to fight and battle all his life. That's why he feels a special relationship with the fans in general admission.

'Avon Park, where I grew up, was a peaceful little southern town where everybody was poor. You didn't always feel poor cause your neighbor didn't have any more than you did.

"The kids played hard and tough, but we didn't have any gangs or anything like that. About the only thing we ever did was steal fruit to eat out of the orchards. And when we got caught they never did anything but tell our mothers.

But we never had much money. And I know that when a working guy who doesn't make much money spends $20 or $30 to bring his family to the ballgame it can be hard on him. I know what it's like to have to scruff around. I've been there. And I appreciate him coming, so I figure that if I go all-out and help make him feel like he got his money's worth...well, I'm satisfied.

NHL Approves Two Transfers

Oakland, K.C. Eyeing Cleveland, Denver

CHICAGO (AP) - The National Hockey League has approved the possible transfer of the Oakland Seals to Cleveland and the possible shift of the Kansas City franchise to Denver.

NHL officials said Wednesday an application by the Seals to move to Cleveland was reviewed by the board of governors, which issued this statement:

"We authorized Mr. Melvin Swig, chairman of the Seals, to proceed as rapidly as possible to work out all the financial requirements which pertain to any such transfer. In addition, the governors gave to our finance committee the authority to authorize the transfer if it is satisfied as to all terms and conditions. Hopefully, conclusion will be reached in a two-week period."

The governors also reviewed the possible sale of Kansas City to a Denver-based group which would transfer the team to

NHL President Clarence Campbell said: "A group headed by Bud Palmer met with us to discuss terms of purchase. We have instructed a special committee to pursue this matter as quickly as possible."

Officials said there is great enthusiasm for hockey in Denver but over-all terms and conditions must be ironed out.

Officials told Swig that additional information was needed, such as determination of negotiating a lease with the Cleveland Coliseum and local businessmen involved.

The amount of money involved in the moves was not disclosed and officials said there would be no further details at present.

Women In Athletics Will Pay To Play

BAY CITY, Mich. (AP) - As the old saying goes, if you want to play you've got to pay.

The collegiate athletic rat race - with its winning-iseverything philosophy, emphasis on heavy recruiting and concern for maintaining a sports image above an academic one - may be in store for those who want equality for women campus athletes.

"I have a fear we'll have pressure to try to get into it," believes Fran Koenig, associate athletic director and women's athletic director at Central Michigan University.

"It depends on whether we feel it's important to keep up with the Joneses or to compete with colleges that think like we do," she told a recent meeting of the Michigan Associated Press Sports Editors Association near Bay City.

Mrs. Koenig, an active member of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW), doesn't want colleges and universities to begin catering to the gifted women athletes while ignoring the less talented ones who still desire sports competition.

Perhaps that's why she doesn't believe in athletic scholarships for women, even though Central Michigan - like several other universities in Michigan and throughout the country - are about to begin such aid programs.

"I would prefer not to give financial aid to women athletes," she said. "Even to men it should be based on

Mrs. Koenig said college programs "are a natural outgrowth of high school programs.

"Most large institutions had something for women, but only in the last five to eight years have women's sports expanded," she said.

"The biggest catalyst in developing college programs for women was Title IX. The law says you can't discriminate in college athletic programs on the basis of sex."

Title IX, part of a United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare regulation, went into effect July 21,

"I think what most women want is not equality," Mrs. Koenig said.

... I think most women want equity. Equity is what is reasonable, just, fair. "I say we don't want the same programs as men. We'd like to develop programs that are more distinctive for the needs of women athletes.

She said the AIAW "wants not identical budgets, not identical programs, just offer sports on demand by women.'

year," Mrs. Koenig said of the Chippewas' outlay for women's sports. "It doesn't make any difference to us if the men used

$180,000. She said CMU doles out 31 full $2,000 scholarships to men competing in sports other than football and basketball, both revenue producers.

So women will get $64,000 over the next three years, she added. Do newspapers, radio and TV discriminate against women's sports in their coverage?

"I feel for the most part we're getting pretty good coverage," Mrs. Koenig said.

She said expanded coverage would come "when enough mothers and dads want to read about what their daughters are doing as what their sons are doing ... '

"If an audience isn't interested in reading it there's no point

The AIAW has a basketball television package lined up.

"We're working with Marv Sugarman Productions, Inc., for possible national TV coverage," Mrs. Koenig said. "ABC-TV has been contacted and they're talking about a package for $25,000 and a percentage of the profits for the next two years. The TV profits will be shared by our entire membership."

There are 750 AIAW members, up from 250 six years

She said the money "is peanuts" compared to what the networks pay the National Collegiate Athletic Association for broadcasting various men's sports. "But you've got to get started someplace and we feel we have a product that will be appealing.

The caliber of women athletes has increased tremendously,' Mrs. Koenig said.

She said women who played on her Central Michigan basketball team six years ago "wouldn't even make the first cut today.' There were about 294,000 girls competing in high school sports during the 1970-71 school year, Mrs. Koenig said. That increased to 1.3 million through

Mrs. Koenig, who is from Great Neck, N.Y., is a graduate of Brown University. She has a masters from Smith College and a Ph.D. from Michigan State. One of the final questions the sports editors - all men asked Mrs. Koenig seemed almost inevitable: "Do you feel that participating in athletics in any way makes a woman less feminine

"I'm not sure what you mean by feminine," she said. "But according to some research women athletes are more sexually satisfying and satisfied

Q: Is Princess Margaret ever going to see that Roddy Liewellyn again? - H.D.,

Q: How come so few TV stars make it as leading actors in the movies and vice versa? - T. B., Casper, Wyo.

A: A lot of critics have tried to figure that one out. They point to such film flops as Lucille Ball, Carol Burnett, Telly Savalas, and even the great Mary Tyler Moore. On the other side there are the cancelled TV shows of Shirley MacLaine, Jimmy Stewart and Henry Fonda. Sure Robert Young is a big TV name but in the movies he was really a second banana in spite of some leading parts. Apparently, the big screen requires a vividly real personality who comes across without "acting," while the less subtle "performer" does better

Q: Did I hear right that actress Charlotte Rampling had a big fling with some guy at the Cannes Film Festival? - K. F., Fiuntsville, Ala.

A: And you thought that Charlotte had finally settled down, right? No more menage a trois and that sort of thing? Well, Charlotte, who was a judge at the festival, met up with musician Jean Michael Jarre, 24, and off she went. Left behind were husband Brian Southcombe and son Barnaby. Miss Rampling says she'll be back in a couple of months to patch things up. The big question is will she bring Jarre home with her?

Is Sigmund Freud's daughter Anna still alive? — P. B., Traverse City, Mich.

A: Yes, she is. At 80, Dr. Freud is still managing her world-famous child therapy clinic in England. Recently she broke a long-standing rule forbidding filming of the work at the clinic when she allowed a production crew, under the direction of Joan Tewkesbury, to photograph patient treatment. The official explanation that she was resting from her stomach operation seemed rather dumb since she had gone to Australia for two weeks by herself shortly after leaving the hospital. "Every man came from the same blood. Can we be ashamed of that? Can we live together? I think so, if we have self respect, and respect for each other.". says John Sitting Bull, 76, the grandson of one of the most famous of all Indians, Sitting Bull, leader of the Telon Dakota Prairie Sioux.

John Sitting Ball came to Michigan in 1925 to work in the auto plants, and did so for some 39 years. But he has always found time to visit those who want to rid themselves of their 'ignorance' of the Native Americans and their struggle to survive these past two cen-

Some of those stories undoub-tedly were about the legendary Sitting Bull. John Sitting Bull learned about his ancestor through his aunts and uncles, who raised him from the time he was orphaned at the age of 3. His father, Sitting Bull's son, died in an auto accident.

Sitting Bull himself had died several years earlier, killed at Grand River, S.D., on Dec. 15, 1890, after police and soldiers attempted to arrest him as a "precautionary measure" during a period of Indian unrest at the Standing Rock agency.

Sitting Boll gained fame when his Sioux joined forces with other tribes to defeat first Gen. George Crook and then Gen. George Custer in the famous battle of the Little Bighorn

"We won many battles, but not the war," says the wizered John Sitting Bull, wearing his grandfather's own costume and years old. He said his grandfather would go into the Black Hills to pray for the white man to leave the Indians alone, that there was enough land for all to share. But it was not to be.

Grandson Recalls Past

Sitting Bull Legend Lives

By BILL DALTON Ypsilanti Press

YPSILANTI, Mich (AP) never asked for anything, except patience and love for those who made his people suffer.

To those who showed him hatred because of what he is an Indian - he showed love.

"Every man came from the same blood. Can we be ashamed of that? Can we live together? I think so, if we have self respect, and respect for each other,' says John Sitting Bull, 76, the grandson of one of the most famous of all Indians, Sitting Bull, leader of the Teton Dakota Prairie Sioux.

John Sitting Bull came to Michigan in 1925 to work in the auto plants, and did so for some 39 years. But he has always found time to visit those who want to rid themselves of their "ignorance" of the Native Americans and their struggle to survive these past two cen-

He spoke recently with students at Eastern Michigan University's "American Myths, Tales and Legends" class, which studies the Indians' stories transmitted orally from one generation to another.

Some of those stories undoubtedly were about the legendary Sitting Bull. John Sitting Bull learned about his ancestor through his aunts and uncles, who raised him from the time he was orphaned at the age of 3. His father, Sitting Bull's son, died in an auto accident.

Sitting Bull himself had died several years earlier, killed at Grand River, S.D., on Dec. 15, 1890, after police and soldiers attempted to arrest him as a "precautionary measure" during a period of Indian unrest at the Standing Rock agency.

Sitting Bull gained fame when his Sioux joined forces with other tribes to defeat first Gen. George Crook and then Gen. George Custer in the famous battle of the Little Bighorn

"We won many battles, but not the war," says the wizened John Sitting Bull, wearing his grandfather's own costume and headdress, now more than 100 years old. He said his grandfather would go into the Black Hills to pray for the white man to leave the Indians alone, that John B. Sitting Bull says he has there was enough land for all to share. But it was not to be.

Hunger finally led the Sioux to surrender, and they finally were sent to the Standing Rock reservation, where Sitting Bull was killed.

But his memory lives on in his grandson.

"He liked to show off for the women as a young man. He had two wives. He killed his first bear at 10 and received his first feather. Next he killed a buffalo for his second feather. For his third, he killed a man, those who were stealing his tribe's horses," said John Sitting Bull.

His own life, after being orphaned, was almost as nomadic as that of his forefathers. He lived in California, three or four places in South Dakota and Iowa before getting a job in a Chicago steel mill when only 16.

"I followed my grandfather's beliefs, not to depend on the government. I wanted to be free, to think, talk, and not be afraid of anything," said John Sitting

But something drew him to the auto plants. A letter to Henry Ford himself resulted in a job offer, and he worked at the Rouge River plant until his retirement.

It wasn't easy. The painful times when a white man would refer to a "stinking Indian" did not pass unnoticed. But the more hate shown toward him because he was an Indian, the more love he had for those people, says John Sitting Bull, who calls himself a devout Christian.

What he didn't respect was their ignorance. He had no opportunity for education. But he said he learned many things.

"Everything of ours was destroved. They killed everything to starve us out, your people did that, it cannot be denied. You need to know the truth. We were the original natives of this land. But people don't seem to care or understand that our children are going hungry," he says.

But with the recent takeover of Wounded Knee by Indians protesting the conditions of some of today's Native Americans, John Sitting Bull was dismayed.

What was it for? Two or three people die for nothing. I wrote Russell Means (a leader of the takeover) and told him he does wrong. I told him I know his feelings, but he did wrong, says John Sitting Bull.

John Sitting Bull picks up a drum. He beats it proudly and dances and chants, much as his ancestors might have done before him in the days when his grandfather was the leader of the Plains Indians.

NORTH CAROLINA: A Strong Spirit Of Freedom

By ROBERT MARKS

HIGH POINT, N.C. - (NEA) - North Carolinians have ever been cantankerous. The trait is partly in their nature and partly a result of the geography of their state. It is more than 500 miles from Manteo on the coast in the east to Murphy in the mountains in the west, and it has always been difficult for North Carolinians to get from one side to the other.

The barriers begin even before the land is reached. The Outer Banks, a strip of sandduned islands, protect the coast line from the ocean. Inland, across both the Coastal Plain and the Piedmont, the rivers flow from the northwest to the southeast. Nature's courses have been followed by the railroads and the interstate highways for the most part. They go north and south across the state more than east and west. To this day, many North Carolinians find it easier to get to Richmond, or even Washington, than to go from Asheville to Wilmington.

North Carolinians are as fractious among themselves as geography makes their state. The political and economic competition between the Piedmont and the East remains the major factor in the affairs of North Carolina. The Piedmont is ahead economically, being the center of the state's tobacco, textile, and furniture industries. The East dominates politically, its representatives controlling the General Assembly from session to session with their canniness and their unity. The mountain people are aloof from both the Piedmont and the East

There are among North Carolinians strains of the English, the Scotch, the Scotch-Irish, Germans, Swiss, French, Waldensians, Welsh. Moravians, Quakers, Lutherans, Baptists, Presbyterians, Methodists, Episcopalians, and a smattering of Catholics. About one-fourth of all North Carolinians are black, the percentage higher in some eastern counties, lower in the western counties. Never burdened with a plantation aristocracy, yet jealous of its state's rights, North Carolina, with one-ninth of the population of the Confederacy, supplied during the Civil War one-sixth of all Confederate soldiers, including two lieutenant generals, seven major generals, and 26 brigadiers. One-fourth of all Confederate battle deaths were North Carolinians.

During the Revolutionary War, 7,663 North Carolinians drew Continental Line pay. Another 10,000 served in the state militia. At Moore's Creek Bridge 18 miles above Wilmington on Feb. 27, 1776, the Whigs defeated the Tories in a battle that drove the British out of North Carolina for the next four years. When the Redcoats returned, their measure was

There was an unsuccessful effort to bring back the Duesenberg by an Indianapolis group which included Fritz Duesenberg, son of Augie, in 1966. The brothers, Ken and Harlan, do not intend to have a rerun of that situation.

"We're a close knit family," said Ken, referring to his brother. "We're working on this project as a team, just like Fred and Augie did." Kenneth and Harlan Duesenberg are the grandsons of a third Duesenberg, Henry, brother of Fred Harlan has served on the big Speedway's technical committee. While his racing days are over, he maintains a keen interest in auto racing.

Doctors Glum On Signature Drive

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) - Efforts by Kent County doctors apparently have failed to obtain enough signatures to let Michigan voters decide in November if legal fees should be limited in malpractice cases. So far, only about 100,000 of the necessary 255.702 signatures have been collected. Deadline for filing petitions is 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Dr. Alfred B. Swanson, chairman of the 54-member Medical Malpractice Action Committee, said about 1,600 of the state's nearly 8,000 physicians circulated the petitions. The drive drew no formal support from the Michigan State Medical Society, Swanson said if the petition drive fails, as he expects, the group will seek legislative action on the proposal.

The group wants contingency fees for lawyers limited to half any award up to $10,000, 10 per cent of the next $90,000 and just one per cent of any amount over $100,000. Present awards range up to 40 per cent of a settlement, up to $500,000. The proposal would have paid lawyers' expenses in addition to the contingency fee. Now, a lawyer is paid only if he wins a settlement for his client.

makers to make sure a four per cent increase in ADC payments effect this July, Some 202,000 Michigan families receive the payments.

Though the House version of the Department of Social Services appropriations bill includes the increase, the Senate approved a version that delayed the hike until July 1977.

The final compromise version, which was being ham-mered out in committee Wednesday, was expected to get legislative approval this week.

ADC recipients complained that 10 per cent inflation in children's clothing prices and soaring utility rates made the increase essential this year.

"It's not fair to balance the res not fair to oaiance the state budget at the expense of poor people," said Tom Bergeson, chairman of the Michigan Welfare Reform Coalition.

The last ADC increase came in July 1975, when payments went up 7 per cent. An ADC nt with four children now gets $409 a month.

The rally is an annual "celebration" of the founding a decade ago of the National Welfare Rights Organization, said Alan Houseman, co-director of Michigan Legal Services. That lawmakers are building budgets at the same time is just a coincidence, he said. The railies have occurred each June 30 since 1968, he said.

Auction Dealer Guilty Of Buying

Stolen Plywood GRAND RAPIDS - An Edwardsburg auction convicted Wednesday in U.S. District court here of receiving and concealing a truckload of stolen plywood valued at approximately $10,000. Jurors in Judge Wendell A. Miles' courtroom returned the guilty verdict against Willie Thomas Reese, 42, owner of Five Points Dealers Auction, to conclude a seven-day trial. Reese remains free on bond awaiting sen-tencing of up to $10,000 fine and 10 years in prison.

According to testimony during the trial, Reese purchased the load of plywood on the night of Sept. 30, 1974, after it had been stolen earlier the same night from the Robert Weed Plywood company in Bristol, Ind. Testimony also indicated that Reese had been purchasing stolen property with the knowledge that it had been stolen since 1971.

His conviction was the result of an FBI investigation which began almost two years ago and led to his indictment by a federal grand jury in February.

Spending Slowdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Board Chair-man Arthur F. Burns says the man Artnur F. Burns says the slowndown in consumer spend-ing in recent months is likely to be temporary, and he predicts the economic recovery will gain new momentum later this year.

"The basic determinants of consumer spending are clearly favorable: real incomes of families are increasing, labor market conditions are improv-ing, and so, too, is the liquidity position of consumers," Burns told Congress' Joint Economic Committee Wednesday.

He said the pace of the recovery since the recession ended in the spring of 1975 has matched most business upsw-ings since World War II.

The unemployment rate currently 7.3 per cent, should fail under 7 per cent by year's end and to about 6.5 per cent by mid-1977. Burns said in his midyear economic report to

Inflation remains a more difficult problem, he added. But by following "prudent policies" and making some structural changes "we can get it down to 4 per cent next year and to zero over the next four years, he

in the next he has changes, but in the past he has cited elimination of restrictive union work rules, government pressure to hold down wages and prices, and bigger manpower training programs as methods of increasing produc-tivity and battling inflation.

Burns said business outlays for basic plant equipment are on the rise, home building is beginning to pick up, demand For labor is greater and indus-trial capacity has risen to 80 per cent in several industries.

Temporary' INVESTORS' GUIDE

The Hedge Theory Can't Be Ignored

By SAM SHULSKY

Any time you want to start an argument among folks interested in economics and investments all you need do is proclaim: "Stocks are a hedge against inflation" or "stocks are not a hedge against infla-tion." Then put your dukes up, fast, because there is never a of the question...

A share of common stock is a certificate of part ownership in a corporation. Theoretically, if the company makes 10 per cent profit on automobiles it now sells at $4,000-85,000, it would be worth more dollars than it was 25 years ago when the 10 per cent profit was made on cars selling for $1,500-$2,000.

But in recent years of record-breaking inflation, that hasn't been necessarily so. Measured by the Dow Jones industrial average, the stock market has not moved up in step with the prices we have had to pay for everyday necessities or luxuries. (Although, dividend income increases from these same stocks have been much closer to the mark.) My answer to those readers who complain that equity investments have not proteted them from inflation lately has been that the theory is based on a long-term investment program; that one cannot expect the D-J to move every day or the D-J to move every day or every month in step with the price of bread and shoes. Now comes a study by "Smart Money," a publication of the Hirsch Organization that also watches mutual funds, which, it seems to me, lends considerable weight to the argument that an inflation hedge.

Going back to the turn of the century, the Hirsch study shows that the Dow Jones average, to more than 50 overlapping 25year periods, showed gains ex-ceeding the rate of inflation during the same periods. For

In the four-year period, 1897-01, the Dow averaged 42; 25 years later — 1922-26 — it averaged 111, a gain of 165 per cent as against an inflation of 108 per cent during the same quarter century. Even the Great Depression period of 1932-38, when the Dow averaged its 28th century low of 96, was no excention. The Dow's 96 average reading represented a gain of 57 per cent over the 1907-11 inflation rise for the same period was only 52 per cent

tions. The Dow averaged 189 in the 1925-29 period and rose to only an average 257 in 1950-54, a gain of 35 per cent, whereas the cost of living in that period rose year period (from 1926-30 to 1951-55) the Dow rose only 37 per cent, as contrasted with a 50 per cent inflation rate.

Reiterating: The market average has failed to keep step with the rate of inflation in the last 8 to 10 years, but Mr. Hirsch's study shows that if you had bought the average in 1947-51, you would have a 340 per cent gain by 1972-76, whereas inflation was 103 per

Incidentally, in no case were dividends added to total reward. Are there flaws? Of course, In the first place, one doesn't generally invest in the D-J averages. Secondly, not everyone can wait 25 years to cash in. Thirdly, there were undoubtedly wide variations within each time period. But I still think the bedge theory can't be ignored. Q. We are in the 35 per cent income tax bracket, but our auditor feels municipal bonds are tee risky.

Covert Sewage Plan Is Outlined

COVERT — Representatives of a Grand Rapids engineering firm last night outlined a $3.8 million plan for a sewage sys-tem to serve part of Covert

The plan recommended by the firm of Williams and Works was reviewed during a public hear-ing on the proposal along with two alternatives.

Under the proposal, lagoons would be installed west of M-140 on 34th avenue near I-196, to provide treatment of sewage

The system would serve 416 customers or an estimated 1,500 people in the more developed area of the township. The township has over 2,600 township has residents in all.

Involved in the alternates were proposals to pipe the sewage to South Haven for treatment or to create a land deposit system.

Township officials, after the presentations, discussed the possibility of holding an advisory referendum among township voters on whether to undertake the project.

If eventually approved, cus-tomers would have to pay a hook-up fee as well as a monthly use charge to help repay a financing bond issue and main tain the system.

NEW BUFFALO - Teachers, administrators and summer help employed by the New Buffalo school district will not receive their July 2 pay checks on time because of insufficient funds.

In a memo sent to all school district employes, Supt. Walter Schwarz said the pay checks have been prepared and will be given out as soon as funds are available.

In the memo, Schwarz said the shortage of funds resulted from the school district not receiving any property tax payments from the county treasurer since March.

Schwarz said normally the district has 88 per cent of its property tax collections by June 30. He said the district is short $47,864 of reaching the 88 per cent level of collections.

Schwarz said the county has collected an undetermined district and it is now in the process of preparing to turn it over to the district.

Auction Dealer Guilty Of Buying Stolen Plywood

GRAND RAPIDS - An Edwardsburg auction dealer was convicted Wednesday in U.S. District court here of receiving and concealing a truckload of stolen plywood valued at approximately $10,000. Jurors in Judge Wendell A. Miles' courtroom returned the guilty verdict against Willie Thomas Reese, 42, owner of Five Points Dealers Auction, to conclude a seven-day trial. Reese remains free on bond awaiting sentencing of up to $10,000 fine and 10 years in prison.

According to testimony during the trial, Reese purchased the load of plywood on the night of Sept. 30, 1974, after it has been stolen earlier the same night from the Robert Weed Plywood company in Bristol, Ind. Testimony also indicated that Reese had been purchasing stolen property with the knowledge that it had been stolen since 1971.

His conviction was the result of an FBI investigation which began almost two years ago and led to his indictment by a federal grand jury in February.

Satisfy Sen. Zollar

By LARRY McINTYRE Staff Writer

Yesterday, before the Legislature adopted the budget for the fiscal quarter ending Sept. 30, Zollar had charged that the state was in the worst financial situation he'd seen in in his 20 years in public office.

When Zollar made the charge, Republicans were still demanding that the Democrats balance the proposed budget which was finally adopted two minutes before the technical deadline of midnight. Much of the budget trimming took place in painful last-minute sessions.

'We had to take drastic action to get them to reduce the budget," Zollar said. He said the Republicans had threatened to withhold their votes on the measure unless the cuts were made. The Democrats needed Republican votes to enable the law to take immediate effect. The three-month budget finally passed totaled $602 million, only $2.3 million more than Gov. William Milliken's recommendation. Zollar said the budget exceeds anticipated revenues for the period by about $2 million. He said a deficit that small could be made up by the governor vetoing certain line items in the measure.

During the partisan struggle over the measure, Zollar had

Fruehauf Officials Get Prison Terms

DETROIT (AP) - Two top executives of a leading truck trailer manufacturer have been sentenced to prison terms on charges of conspiring to evade more than $12.3 million in federal excise taxes owed by the corporation. Fruehauf Corp. Board Chairman William Grace. 68, and President Robert Howan, 53, were sentenced Wednesday to six months and one day in jail. NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Adding To Gains

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market pushed ahead today, adding to the gradual gains of the past two sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose more than a point in the early going, and gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was active.

Analysts said the market was drawing continued support from the remarks Wednesday of Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns, who said he intended to stick with a moderate monetary policy.

Today's early prices included Texaco, up ½ at 28%; S.S. Kresge, unchanged at 35½; G.D. Searle, up 1/4 at 15%, and Rockwell International down 1/8 at outnumbered Advances declines by about a 2-1 spread among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index added .25 to 55.71.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average gained 2.13 to 1,002.78.

Big Board volume reached 23.83 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .23 at 105.32.

Spending Slowdown

WASHINGTON (AP) -Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns says the slowndown in consumer spending in recent months is likely to be temporary, and he predicts the economic recovery will gain new momentum later this year. "The basic determinants of consumer spending are clearly favorable: real incomes of families are increasing, labor market conditions are improving, and so, too, is the liquidity position of consumers," Burns told Congress' Joint Economic Committee Wednesday.

He said the pace of the recovery since the recession ended in the spring of 1975 has matched most business upswings since World War II.

The unemployment rate. currently 7.3 per cent, should fall under 7 per cent by year's end and to about 6.5 per cent by mid-1977. Burns said in his midyear economic report to Congress.

Inflation remains a more difficult problem, he added. But by following "prudent policies" and making some structural changes "we can get it down to 4 per cent next year and to zero over the next four years, he predicted.

He did not spell out any changes, but in the past he has cited elimination of restrictive union work rules, government pressure to hold down wages and prices, and bigger manpower training programs as methods of increasing productivity and battling inflation.

Burns said business outlays for basic plant equipment are on the rise, home building is beginning to pick up, demand for labor is greater and industrial capacity has risen to 80 per cent in several industries.

'Temporary' INVESTORS' GUIDE The Hedge Theory Can't Be Ignored

By SAM SHULSKY

Any time you want to start an argument among folks interested in economics and investments all you need do is proclaim: "Stocks are a hedge against inflation" or "stocks are not a hedge against inflation." Then put your dukes up, fast, because there is never a lack of argument on either side of the question.

certificate of part ownership in a corporation. Theoretically, if the company makes 10 per cent profit on automobiles it now sells at $4,000-$5,000, it would be worth more dollars than it was 25 years ago when the 10 per cent profit was made on cars selling for $1,500-$2,000.

But in recent years of recordbreaking inflation, that hasn't been necessarily so. Measured by the Dow Jones industrial average, the stock market has not moved up in step with the prices we have had to pay for everyday necessities or luxuries. (Although, dividend income increases from these same stocks have been much closer to the mark.) My answer to those readers who complain that equity investments have not proteted them from inflation lately has been that the theory is based on long-term investment program; that one cannot expect the D-J to move every day or every month in step with the price of bread and shoes. Now comes a study by "Smart Money," a publication of the Hirsch Organization that also watches mutual funds, which, it seems to me, lends considerable weight to the argument that stocks - held long-term - are an inflation hedge. Going back to the turn of the century, the Hirsch study shows that the Dow Jones average, for more than 50 overlapping 25year periods, showed gains exceeding the rate of inflation during the same periods. For example: In the four-year period, 1897-01, the Dow averaged 42; 25 years later - 1922-26 - it averaged 111, a gain of 165 per cent as against an inflation of 108 per cent during the same quarter century. Even the Great Depression period of 1932-36, when the Dow averaged its 20th century low of 96, was no exception. The Dow's 96 average reading represented a gain of 57 per cent over the 1907-11 average of 61 - whereas the inflation rise for the same period was only 52 per cent. There were a couple of exceptions. The Dow averaged 189 in the 1925-29 period and rose to only an average 257 in 1950-54, a gain of 36 per cent, whereas the cost of living in that period rose year period (from 1926-30 to 1951-55) the Dow rose only 37 per cent, as contrasted with a 50 per cent inflation rate. Reiterating: The market average has failed to keep step with the rate of inflation in the last 8 to 10 years, but Mr. Hirsch's study shows that if you had bought the average in 1947-51, you would have a 340 per cent gain by 1972-76. whereas inflation was 103 per

Incidentally, in no case were dividends added to total reward. Are there flaws? Of course. In the first place, one doesn't generally invest in the D-J Secondly, not everyone can wait 25 years to cash in. Thirdly, there were undoubtedly wide variations within each time period. But I still think the hedge theory can't be ignored.

Q. We are in the 35 per cent income tax bracket, but our auditor feels municipal bonds are too risky.

A. Some are, some aren't. Over a period of many decades, tax-exempts - as a class have had a relatively good record of safety.

Q. In a recent report to shareholders, earnings were given as $8.40 a share, or $8.03 fully diluted." What is meant by dilution?

A. The conversion of outstanding convertible debentures or convertible preferred into common would increase the number of shares the total income would have to be divided amongst, thus "diluting" the $8.40 to $8.03.

House Unanimous On

Home Repair Tax Bill

LANSING, Mich. (AP) - Homeowners who repair their houses and keep them in good shape would no longer get extra tax assessments for that work under legislation before the Senate. The bill, approved by the House 106-0 Wednesday, had passed the Senate earlier, but was amended there with a $4,000 ceiling on the amount of repair work which could be exempted from assessment. But when it returned to the House, its sponsor, Rep. Thomas

Mathieu, D-Grand Rapids, amended it to remove that ceiling. As the bill now stands, the cost of work excluded from assessment could not exceed 40 per cent of the previous year's valuation on the building. Among normal maintenance projects which could not be assessed under the bill are outside painting; repairing siding, roof, porches and steps; repainting or repairing masonry; adding gutters or insulation; and replacing plumbing.

Government Delays Sale By White

CLEVELAND (AP) - The intervention by antitrust division of the U.S. Justice Department has delayed a proposed sale by White Motor Corp. of its White Superior Division to Cooper Industries of Houston.

The $36.5 million sale which was scheduled to take place Wednesday will be delayed until at least mid-July, White Motor officials said.

A Justice Department spokesman in Washington said the agency was investigating whether the sale would reduce competition. White Superior makes stationary diesel and natural gas engines and compressors. Cooper makes similar equipment.

The sale had been announced earlier as a step in straightening out the firm's financial difficulties. Those difficulties led White Motor to try to merge with White Consolidated Industries but the deal never came

Fruehauf Officials Get Prison Terms

DETROIT (AP) - Two top executives of a leading truck trailer manufacturer have been sentenced to prison terms on charges of conspiring to evade more than $12.3 million in federal excise taxes owed by the corporation. Fruehauf Corp. Board Chairman William Grace, 68, and President Robert Rowan, 53, were sentenced Wednesday to six months and one day in jail. They and the firm were also fined $10,000 each by U.S. District Court Judge Thomas Thornton. The men were released on $5,000 bond and appealed the decision.

The corporation is the world's largest producer of truck trailers and containers in which goods are shipped. The officers were convicted in July 1975, five years after an indictment was returned by a federal grand jury in Detroit. Grace and Rowan were charged with attempting to evade the payment of Fruehauf's federal manufacturers excise taxes from October 1956 to Dec. 31, 1965.

According to the indictment, the men evaded excise taxes in two ways. Under one method of pricing to distributors, they had decreased the price of truck trailers upon which excise tax was to be paid. They billed the distributors for "nonexistent services" which were not subject to excise tax. Secondly, the indictment said, the men had arranged with tire manufacturers for an inflated purchase price for tires. The officials then allegedly claimed a tax credit on the higher price and the corporation received a cash rebate from the manufacturer. In a statement following the sentence, Fruehauf said the company and its two top officials have appealed to the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The sentences have been stayed pending appeal. "The case deals principally with the excise tax base applicable to retail sales of trailers," Fruehauf said. "Trial counsel have advised that the proof introduced by the government in the course of the trial total failed to establish facts necessary to the government's case and expect to prevail on ap-

Billion-Dollar 'Mule Teams'

Cocaine Smugglers Resourceful

By JOHN PLATERO

Associated Press Writer MIAMI (AP) — in a Bogota, Colombia, hotel room, a Cincinnati woman dismaniled her portable hairdryer and replaced its electric motor with three pounds of carefully packed encaine.

Billion-Dollar 'Mule Teams'

Cocaine Smugglers Resourceful

By JOHN PLATERO

Associated Press Writer MIAMI (AP) - In a Bogota. Colombia, hotel room, a Cincinnati woman dismantled her portable hairdryer and replaced its electric motor with three pounds of carefully packed

Then she caught a plane for Miami.

The woman, arrested by U.S. Customs Service inspectors at busy Miami International Airport, was what authorities call a mule - the amateur or professional who carries drugs into this country via commercial transportation to help supply a $3 billion-a-year U.S. market for illegal drugs.

Miami is the nation's cocaine import capital, where the most seizures and arrests of mules are made. Of the 735 pounds of cocaine seized in the United States last year, 198 pounds or 27 per cent of it was taken at Miami's airport.

It's anybody's guess how much cocaine slips through undetected here and elsewhere.

Just last month, 170 pounds of cocaine were confiscated by Customs agents in Tampa who were watching a banana boat which had arrived from Colombia. Agents said the cache was worth $39 million, one of the largest seizures on record.

'Drug imports, mostly cocaine, are on the increase,' said Howard Ford, director of Customs' airport operations in Miami. "We have no estimate on how much is getting by, but we could make more seizures if we had more personnel."

In the first five months of this year, Customs inspectors at Miami International confiscated 166 pounds of cocaine, a powerful stimulant which drug experts say is not physically addictive. Cocaine, made from the leaves of the coca bush, is often called the "Champagne of Drugs," because of its high market price and popularaity among some rock musicians and jet-setters.

"Every conceivable way to smuggle drugs has been tried."

supervisor for the federal Drug Enforcement Administration, whose agents take over investigations after the initial arrest.

Mules have carried drugs inside fishing rods, aerosol cans, book covers, tennis racquets, false-bottomed suitcases, diving tanks and children's toys. They have carried liquified cocaine in seemingly unopened liquor bot-

More dangerously, mules have tried to avoid detection by swallowing packets of cocaine or inserting them into body

In the last two months, four mules have died when their body acids destroyed the packrets and released the drug into their system, Customs

But the lure of great profit

attracts many willing to take the risks

Most of the cocaine smuggled into the United States comes from Colombia and Peru. Persons agreeing to serve as mules can earn $5.000 aside from an expenses-paid trip for several days to South America.

Those who hire the mules are playing for bigger stakes. A $10,000 investment for 97 per cent pure cocaine can be multiplied 32 times - returning $320,000 - after it has been transported and its purity reduced to about 12 per cent for street sales, a drug official said.

Cocaine users who sniff or "snort" are known as "vacuum

Customs inspectors and DEA agents say there is no stereotype for a mule. Drugs have been found on the young and old, affluent and poor, businessman and diplomat

Officials say that arrested mules most often show little remorse or fear of prison sen-

"Once they are caught, they accept it," said Customs inspector Jomn Ryan. "And they seem to be well informed about what will happen to them. One man I caught wasn't a bit alarmed and said he was confident of his chances under the judicial system."

"He was very friendly and even helped me open the tanks. They were filled with drugs," O'Connor said.

Another inspector, Chuck Winwood, recalls a stranger case. "One of our men noticed that the padding on the wheelchair used by a deformed midget was thicker than other wheelchairs. When we inspected the chair's padding, it was filled with cocaine.'

Inspectors and DEA agents listed these recent cases:

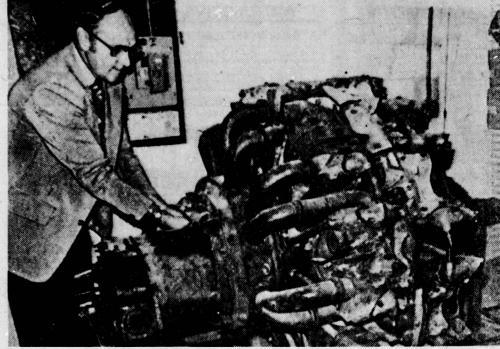

-Scott Wirkus, 17, of Racine, Wisc., died in an airport hotel shortly after he passed Customs without incident. He had swallowed 53 coke-filled prophylactics. Some of them

-A 63-year-old retired Borgota nurse, Maria del Carmen de Garzon, was arrested when she arrived from Colombia. In a false-bottom suitcase inspectors found 21/2 pounds of cocaine.

"The mule is the beginning for DEA," said Irv Weinstein, the agency's assistant regional director. "Customs makes the seizures. From there, we make our investigation ... to bring in the conspirators."

BUCHANAN - Clark Equipment Company announced Tuesday that the axle division of its general product group will build a 400,000-square-foot manufacturing plant near Statesville, N.C., at the junction of Interstate Highway I-40 and I-77. The new plant, scheduled for completion in 1977, will fabricate planetary axles for off-highway vehicles, such as construction and mining equipment.

The manufacturing facility will consist of fabrication and assembly operation covering 380,000-square-feet and a 20,000square-foot office building on a 95-acre site. The new plant is expected to employ 400 persons by 1978, with most of them coming from the Statesville area. Construction is scheduled to begin immediately. No cost estimates are being released

Currently, Clark builds its line of off-highway planetary axles in Buchanan. This operation will continue, according to Nelson R. Henry, group vice president. Growth in the axle industry is forecast to continue in recent years. The company has had to put axle customers on allocation. The new plant is expected to alleviate this situation, and provide necessary capacity for the anticipated upsurge in demand. Architects for the Statesville plant are L. B. Smith and Associate of Monroe, N.C., a subsidiary of Dickerson, Inc.

In addition to axles, the general products group manufactures transmissions and the Melroe line of skid-steer loaders and agriculture products. In 1975, this group accounted for approximately one-third of Clark's $1.4 billion dollars of sales volume. Clark Equipment Company, headquartered in Buchanan, also is a major producer of material handling equipment and construction machinery

Trustee Larry Nye said a Berrien county road commission official told him a no passing zone will also be posted on Cleveland but the existing 50mile-per-hour speed limit could not be reduced. The council rejected the suggestion to post a reduce speed sign because it would only serve as a warning to motorists and could not be enforced.

Nye reported the county will absorb the costs for painting the stripes on the road and the no passing signs but the village will have to pay for the village

The action is a result of a request made in May by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mattner, 1821 Cleveland avenue to have the speed limit reduced because of the quantity of traffic in that section of the road. A local 14year-old boy was struck and killed last May as he was riding his bicycle on the shoulder of the road.

In other business Nye also reported an official from the Michigan Department of Public Health notified him that the village will have to begin a study of how many plumbing cross-connections are in village homes and businesses. He said the village must submit a plan reporting the approximate number of these connections and estimating when they will be eliminated. A year end report must also be submitted telling how many have been eliminated.

The council approved the cutter from Baroda Lumber

South Haven Hikes Electric Rates 40%

South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN - Contending that the Indiana & Michigan Electric company is trying to put municipal electric utilities out of business, the South Haven city council last night "reluctantly" approved a 40 per cent increase in rates charged its electric customers.

The increase is needed to balance a 65 per cent hike in the rate I&M sells power to the city. City officials say the increase will allow them to maintain their gross profit pattern of recent years.

'It is obvious that I&M is trying to put its wholesale customers out of business," said second ward alderman Joseph

The city has been able to keep its retail rate below that charged by private utilities, but the most recent hike is expected to bring the city within or perhaps a little above what retail customers of I&M and Consumers Power company are paying

The councilmen were also critical of the Federal Power commission for allowing I&M to implement the new higher rates on a temporary basis without public hearings.

The FPC has told I&M it can put its new rates into effect July 27 as long as the money is placed in escrow in case all or part of the proposed hike is denied.

The FPC has not been one for quick action. It is still considering a 1972 rate request from I&M which caused the city to increase its charges 20 per cent. That proposed rate was given "temporary" also approval pending FPC review.

'The FPC is a big farce," concluded second ward alderman Norvan Books. "It's obvious to me whose interests they (the FPC) are looking out for and it isn't the citizens.

The 40 per cent increase will be reflected on bills received Oct. 1, according to city officials.

In other matters, council referred back to the planning commission for further study a proposed zoning ordinance. Council at its June 15 meeting tabled action on a recommendation from the planning commission that the ordinance be adopted. Some aldermen contended the planning commission had not been responsive to the public despite two years of deliberation.

The council adopted a new housing code which is designed to consolidate language from several existing ordinances.

Requests for taxi licenses from Bobby Morgan, 330 Cherry street, and Felix Spencer, 425 Avlworth avenue, were referred to the city manager for review.

The Van Buren count chapter of the Disabled American Veterans was given permission to conduct their annual Forget-Me-Not sale Aug.
